

Interpon D1000 - take the risk out of curing!

Australia's leading brand – Interpon D1000 is the preferred choice for powder coating of metals. Why? Because it was formulated to customer specifications and designed to meet all industry requirements, ensuring optimal performance without compromise.

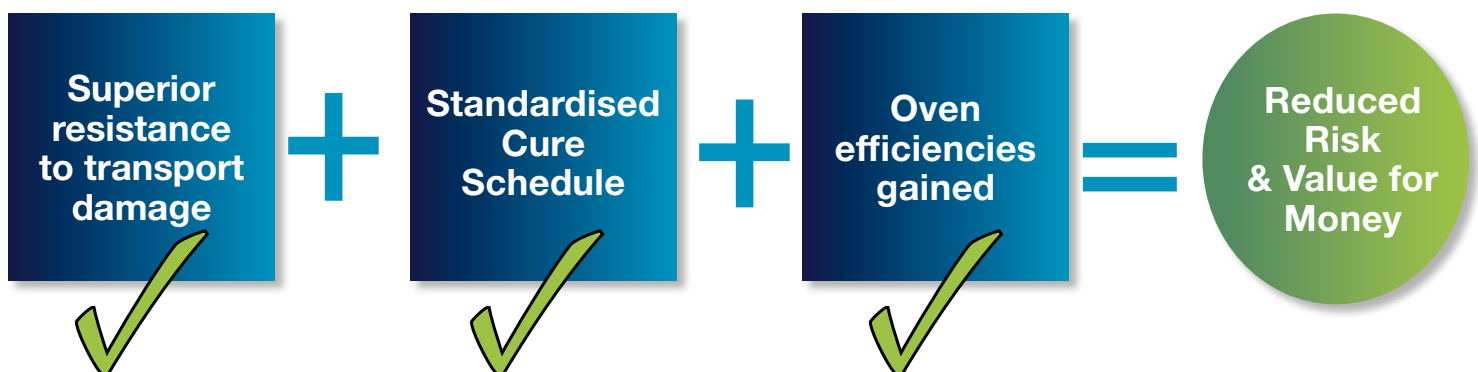

Guaranteed Quality – without Compromise
Interpon D1000 provides outstanding application characteristics featuring superior mileage, optimised curing and increased toughness - without compromising on product performance.

Peace of Mind – A set and forget process

The Interpon philosophy is to provide products with uniform cure schedule with positive cure results that reduce this risk.

Today's production environment requires flexibility, quick response to color change and technology specifications and speed to market.

Constantly changing oven temperatures and cure schedules can be risky not to mention costly in terms of the impact to productivity and your bottom line.
